Architectural testing powerhouses join forces under the Molimo banner

Molimo acquires National Certified Testing Laboratories including facilities in Pennsylvania and Washington state

YORK, Pa., May 3, 2023 — Molimo and National Certified Testing Laboratories (NCTL), two leading forces in the national building products testing and certification industry, have merged to provide unrivaled customer service and a unique value-added range of services. On April 17, York-based Molimo took lead of NCTL's operations. This acquisition brings NCTL's incredible team of technicians and engineers along with its York, Pa., and Everett, Wash., testing operations under the Molimo banner. The addition of the west coast facility is part of Molimo's geographic expansion strategy to conveniently serve its customers with a national level of service in a local way.

"Molimo customers know how deeply we understand and engage with their projects," says Henry Taylor, Molimo CEO. "We are excited to bring that expertise, enthusiasm and customer-centric culture to our new NCTL clients as we show them how we prioritize relationships and the efficacy of our processes."

Molimo and NCTL clients will experience a seamless transition with enhanced opportunities as these industry leaders combine the best of what they offer: a customer-centric focus; a leadership and engineering team with centuries of industry experience; flexible and value-added services that keep projects on schedule; onsite project support services including machine and fabrication facilities; state-of-the-art testing facilities and a team of engineers and support technicians dedicated solely to supporting testing equipment; and testing capability that ranges from small scale component and materials testing all the way up to full size pre-construction mockup testing.

Dan Zeiders, former NCTL President notes, "NCTL has a legacy of providing customer-focused service, and I'm thrilled to pass it on to Molimo, another company emphatically committed to its customers and the advancement of our industry."
